Subject: Microsoft settlement

The planned settlement in the Microsoft Antitrust case is completely inappropriate for a company that has repeatedly demonstrated its unwillingness to abide by the law. You are dealing with a Robber Baron mentality, and must react accordingly. Frankly, the proposed government settlement looks like a "sell out." Nothing short of releasing the Win32 code into the public domain will do, and even if that were done it would be necessary to prevent Microsoft from introducing proprietary changes to the code.
